GRAND PRIX OF BALTIMORE

The Grand Prix of Baltimore takes place Labor Day weekend, August 31 - September 2, 2012. We recommend that you take MTA transit to get there. Whether you choose Local Bus, Light Rail or Metro Subway, MTA transit is your best option to reach the Grand Prix of Baltimore venue all weekend long.

Twenty-three Local Bus routes stop within easy walking distance of the Grand Prix of Baltimore venue. Light Rail is a great choice if you are traveling from north of the city, south of the city, or from the BWI Marshall Airport. Exit Light Rail at Hamburg Street Stop if coming from the south, or at University Center/Baltimore Street Stop if coming from the north. From either stop it's a quick walk to the Grand Prix of Baltimore gate. Metro Subway can whisk you to downtown from the west and east and drop you off at Charles Center Station West. It's just a short walk to all the fun and excitement of the Grand Prix of Baltimore.

The Grand Prix of Baltimore Transit Guide and Diversion Map features the most current transit service information available at the time of publication. For transit updates visit www.mta.maryland.gov or call 410-539-5000.
